FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 16. The stock market to-day did not act in a manner to justify current predictions that a great and further rise in prices can be immediately engineered. On the other hand, throughout the day evidences were strong, as they were yesterday, that the market was what speculators call "tired." Prices of the leading stocks or many of them were plainly inclined to sag when they were not lashed into activity by manipulative effort. There was no attempt made to raid the market, nor any specific cause that could be pointed out as that to which the weak undertone was due, and this made the weakness that was shown all the more significant. The day's news was, indeed, what would ordinarily be considered highly encouraging. The long expected advance in the list of prices of some of the finished steel products occurred. Trade reports from all centres were optimistic. Telegraphic and telephonic communication between Wall Street and the West, while not completely reestablished, was still in sufficient working order to dispose of any assertion that the buying power of the market was seriously curtailed by lack of desired facilities for the transaction of business, trustworthy information being, moreover, that in orders from out of town cities that were received directions to sell stocks predominated. Despite all this and the helpful influence, or what has been such hitherto, of higher prices in certain stocks liquidation rather than new buying prevailed in the market, and at the close of business prices displayed a greater and more general heaviness and lack of resiliency than they have for a long time.

It is true that speculators in London were somewhat perturbed to-day over a story printed in one of the London newspapers that there had been trouble between the Russians and the Afghans on the Afghan frontier, but this story was not confirmed in responsible quarters and appears not to have been generally believed in the British capital. It was commonly said today that the London selling which took place in this market of between 30,000 and 60,000 shares of stock, as variously estimated, was due to this incident. It was noticeable, however, that the chief weakness in our market occurred at the end of the day or long after the London stock Exchange had closed. Those in closets touch with affairs in London believed that to-day's reversal of position in our market by English speculators was due to purely general reasons. Some profit taking by these speculators after their recent large buying is no more than natural; and it may be that the fears of an adverse effect upon the international political situation by what seemed to be to-day the imminent danger of a break-up of the French Ministry had as much to do with the changed disposition of London as anything else. It would also be not a thing to be wondered at if prudent forethought regarding the local money situation caused by the repeated gold exports and the prospect for their continuance had not a little to do to-day with the moderation of enthusiasm over the market recently expressed by some of the larger operators. Gold actually engaged since last Friday for shipment out of the country footed up at the opening of business this morning $6,600,000, and $750,000, in addition to the sum stated, was taken to-day. Bar gold again advanced in London and sterling exchange here, which THE PEOPLES GAS LIGHT AND COKE

was weak in the early part of the day, was firm and strong at the close of business. Call money did not rise above 2½ per cent. to-day, but time money was distinctly firmer. Considering, in addition to our loss of funds by the gold exports, the figures of our slender bank surplus, the usual necessities for cash at the end The regular quarterly dividend of ONE AND of the year and the preparations for the call upon the banks which it is known the Secretary of the Treasury will soon make, it does not seem at all unlikely that both call and time money rates will rise considerably in the near future. Railroad earnings as to-day reported were neither remarkably good nor bad. The New York Central's surplus for the September quarter increased but $62,142; the Southern Pacific's gross for the month of September decreased $129,718, and its net increase $52,351. The particularly strong stocks to-day were North American, Amalgamated Copper, Chesapeake and Ohio, Detroit Southern preferred, Toledo, St. Louis and Southwestern preferred, Norfolk and Western, Metropolitan Street Railway, Chicago and Great Western, and, in the early part of the day, Union and Southern Pacific stocks and those of the Rock Island Company. In the later trading, many of the stocks named lost all or nearly all of their rise

THE OUTSIDE MARKET.

The strong undertone that has been apparent in recent sessions of the outside market was noticeably absent to-day, and the course of prices, while to some extent irregular, betrayed a distinctly reactionary market was noticeably absent to-day, and the course of prices, while to some extent irregular, betrayed a distinctly reactionary tendency. Opening quotations were generally on a level with or slightly below those ruling at the close on Tuesday, and thereafter they continued to decline until the last hour of business, when a slight reaction raised them fractionally above the lowest of the day. The losses sustained were for the most part of small consequence, but they affected the greater part of the list, and gave the appearance of a weak and sagging market at the close.

Standard Oil stock, which suffered most severely under the downward movement, broke 13 points, from 635 to 622, although the selling in this instance was probably chiefly due to the disappointment of stockholders at the amount of the dividend declared yesterday. In all, 61 shares changed hands. Interborough Rapid Transit, which sold as high as 157 on Tuesday, opened today at 155, declined to 164% and closed at 154%, showing a net loss of 1% points. Northern Securities held fairly steady throughout the day. At one time it fell % of a point, but its closing figure represented no price change from yesterday.

There was a material falling off in the trading in the International Mercantile Marine issues, which yesterday formed so large a part of the market's business. Evidences of profit taking appeared in the prices of both the common and preferred shares, which declined % of a point each. The Seaboard Air Line shares and the copper issues were fairly active and fractionally higher, while the Havana Tobacco securities sold off somewhat. The feature of the bond department, which was firm, was the trading in United States Shipbuliding certificates. These securities scored an extreme rise of 4 points, touching 40, and they closed at 39%, after dealings amounting to $237,000.

mind hold the "whip hand" this season in the matter of determining prices. But a crop report of around 11,500,000 bales certainly would not attract built speculation."

Norden & Co., Weld & Co., Hubbard Bros. & Co., Herman Hagedorn and Price brokers were selling freely at times. Sully brokers bought May. Wall Street interests were moderate buyers of January.

Hubbard Bros. & Co. said: "With the slow reopening of telegraphic communication, Liverpool has received offers of an accumulation of cotion throughout the South, and broke badly to day under this pressure. The American markets yield slowly, as there is little disposition to take the short side, though the trade confesses to an inability to attract speculation at the moment away from the slock market. We are now comparing with the largest movement of last season, and after this week, last year, the movement gradually fell off. Some one must be selling a large quantity to keep the movement so heavy, when we hear on all sides of holding by planters. It is probably being bought to fill old orders, as our Continent al exporters report little new business appearing. This is pronounced in the case of the Russian demand, which it is now though will show a failing off of some 200,000 bales this year. We have expected this decreased demand would give our American spinners just that amount more to draw from."
